PGA Cup—U.S. Completes Record PGA Cup Rally to Reclaim

Little over 20 years after “The Country Club Miracle” in the Ryder Cup, a new chapter in United States team golf lore was written among the rolling terrain outside Austin, Texas.

Call it “Redemption in the Foothills” as the United States crafted a 14-12 historic comeback victory over Great Britain & Ireland in the 29th PGA Cup.

The ignition point for the Americans happened in a 45-minute span on the uphill 518-yard par-5 18th hole. Bob Sowards of Dublin, Ohio, holed a blind downhill pitch for eagle for the first U.S. point of the day. Then, rookie Alex Beach of Stamford, Connecticut scrambled to gouge a chip from a sidehill rough to within 10 feet and make his birdie putt. Those 1-up wins set the stage for the U.S. to capture eight of 10 Sunday singles matches.

Humbled 24 hours earlier after losing seven of eight matches on the Fazio Foothills Course at the Omni Barton Creek Resort & Spa, the Americans found themselves in a 10-6 hole. It was eerily reminiscent of the same score the U.S. faced on a Sunday in 1999 in Brookline, Massachusetts, against Europe in the Ryder Cup.

This time, it was a team of American PGA Club Professionals manufacturing the first comeback win on a Sunday in PGA Cup history, which also denied GB&I a third straight victory.

The U.S. reclaimed the Llandudno International Trophy for the first time since 2013, when it tied 13-13 to retain the 18-pound piece of silver.

It was America’s first outright PGA Cup win since 2011 (a 17½ to 8½ decision) in the premier international event for PGA Club Professionals. The U.S. now owns an 18-7-4 overall record.

U.S. Captain Derek Sprague of Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, recalled his Saturday night team meeting.

“I think being four points down, some of the players, especially the rookies, might have wondered if we can really come back,” said Sprague. “I told them last night that I believed in them, but I needed them to believe in themselves. And this is what can happen when you believe in yourself.”

The fuel of the stunning comeback was lit by Sowards unimagined pitch from 25 yards with a lob wedge, and was followed 45 minutes later when Alex Beach made up-and-down for birdie from a side-hill lie at 18.

Meanwhile, Ben Kern of Round Rock, Texas – in the day’s second match – battled to turn around his fortunes against Scotland’s Paul O’ Hara. He was one down through 12 holes. He found the spark by chipping in for birdie at No. 13. From there, he scored wins on Holes 16 and 17 with pars to closed out a 2 and 1 victory.

The final two matches on the course would determine the American’s fate. Jason Caron of Greenlawn, New York, closed out David Dixon, 3 and 2, to set off celebration among the U.S. team and entourage. “This morning when I woke up, I had a nice feeling about how I was going to play,” he said.

But, the game wasn’t over. The scoreboard read 13-12, and one match was left to be decided.

Marty Jertson of Phoenix, Arizona, the Vice President of Fitting & Performance for PING Golf, and who has designed several of the clubs in his bag, got the honor of scoring the decisive U.S. point.

He ran home a 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole for his lone point of the week, and a 4 and 2 decision over Craig Lee. The two-year residence of the Llandudno Trophy was adjusted to read, "United States."

"You can never count anything in match play," said Jertson. "I started thinking we had a real chance, so it was time to put the pedal to the metal. It's an unbelievable feeling. I think it was fitting to clinch it (on No. 16 green) in front of all the boys, spouses and fans."

As the afternoon unfolded, it became a staggering series of moments for GB&I Captain Cameron Clark, who had assembled what he had earlier called "our best team."

"It was tough to take today. It was a real honor to captain your country and we'd done a great job up until today," said Clark, who had competed in 2015 and was a vice captain for the past two winning GB&I teams. "I'm very proud of what the lads have achieved this week, they've worked really hard and maybe the end of the week just took its toll on them. I can take away a huge amount of satisfaction. To captain your country is always fantastic. I'm really proud of what the lads have achieved but it will be tough to go in the team room, but we've enjoyed everything we've done this week."

The quality U.S. performance included a pair of flawless wins by rookies Ben Cook of Caledonia, Michigan, and Ryan Vermeer of Omaha, Nebraska. They won Sunday's seventh and eighth matches without dropping a single hole – the only players to accomplish that on either side.

Vermeer's 5 and 4 decision over Jordan Godwin was the American's largest margin victory of the weekend and it resulted in his third point, which tied Sowards for most on the squad.

Cook celebrated his 26th birthday by dispatching Jason Levermore, 4 and 3.

Sean McCarty of Solon, Iowa, was another rookie winner for the U.S., downing England's Matt Cort, 2 and 1, handing him his lone loss of the Cup in five starts.

Career Consultant Update

Jeff "JD" Drimel, PGA - PGA Career Consultant

Dear District 8 PGA Members & Friends,

What a beautiful time of the year...temperatures are cooling, leaves are changing colors, golf courses are in amazing shape and schedules are winding down. Please take a minute or two to enjoy the changing season and especially to recap all the great things you, and your teams, have done for golf in 2019! Jot a few of your successes down and use them with your facility leaders and owners. If YOU don't tell your story, WHO will?

A couple September thoughts...

1. What are the key ingredients for a facility be successful? A continuation of the August update. (Borrowing the research and expertise from a fellow PGA Professional, Thanks CF!) ...This is Final Piece following the "affordability" piece of the puzzle.
  - A. Affordability – Last month...
  - B. Accessibility – People need to have access to the golf course. Play must be a part of any successful development program. We need to get new players on the course. New players can learn the swing on the range, but they don't learn to play the game there. Players don't get hooked on the game until they can experience the course. If there is not access, it never happens.
  - C. Good Instruction - The experienced and best teachers at the facility need to lead the instruction. Most player development programs are taught by the least experienced instructors. New players need to get correct information and have success right away, so they can enjoy the game. Without some early success they become discouraged and don't come back. The instructor needs to be compassionate to how hard the game is for the new player.
  - D. Inspiration – Players need to be inspired to come to the course. This can come from the Pro, the high school coach, a parent, other players, or competition. Something or someone that makes them want to play and practice and excites them to play the game.
2. Staffing and Mentoring – One of the most consistent topics of discussion this year was the lack of help available in golf. Our team is working on some recruiting strategies, but REAL results come from within and your network. Reach out to some possible candidates now for help in the fall season that may lead to a continued relationship next spring. Identify new potential staff members who can enjoy your facility the remainder of the year while also filling some voids. Reach out to fellow Professionals to see if they have any available candidates that they may not have hired. The best strategy is to be pro-active.
  - A. What is a Mentor? – A mentor is someone who "advises and guides." I, personally, have many mentors that I am in contact with nearly daily and could not be in the position I'm in without them. Who are your mentors? More importantly, are you one?

Please feel free to contact me anytime...Here's to a great fall golf season!

All the Best!

District 8 Director Update

David Schneider, PGA District 8 Director

Greetings to all Members and Associates of the Nebraska PGA!

Time to “Collaborate”!!!

I researched the word “collaborate” in the dictionary and this is its definition it provided; “To work jointly on an activity, especially to produce or create something.”

This is exactly what the District 8 officers and staff hope to do at our Fall District 8 Meetings on Oct 7 and 8th. Each year the Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa sections meet in the fall for this meeting where it rotates locations each year. This October we will be meeting in Des Moines, IA where the President of the Section, Aaron Krueger, will be our hosts at Wakonda Club.

So, one might ask, what are the goals, mission and vision with these District meetings each year?

This is the one time per year that each section’s officers and staff have a chance to be dedicated to each other with hopes of learning how each grows the game and serves the PGA member in their respective area through their strategic plans.

Our goals each Fall District 8 Meeting are to:

- ❖ Exchange ideas on how to grow revenues and save on expenses in each section
- ❖ Share what programs and Ideas each are doing to increase rounds and golf lessons
- ❖ Increase camaraderie and grow the contact list in our industry
- ❖ Gain valuable knowledge and updates on what is happening at the national PGA level
- ❖ Discuss what the issues are with other PGA sections and districts around the country
- ❖ Play the game of golf - that is why we all got into this business correct? (By the way, I have not gotten a skin in the past 4 years in these events.)

We believe this to be the 5th annual “District 8 Meeting” where we hope for it to be the most productive to date.

All have a great October and thanks for what you do for this great game!

Please be sure to contact me if you have any questions I can assist.

PGA of America Opens Frisco Office ahead of New HQ

By Diana Zoga

Over the last month, the PGA of America began moving employees from its current headquarters in Florida to a temporary office in Frisco – paving the way for the next steps in a major development anchored by the PGA.

"Our team is here to help bring it to a reality," said Darrell Crall, Chief Operating Officer of PGA of America. "People are able to see it as they drive up and down the Tollway and 380 - as its becoming a very real project that we hope will be very vital to the community."

So far, 22 employees have relocated to the temporary Frisco office at Hall Office Park. By 2022, the PGA of America expects to have 125 employees at its new headquarters – a mix of employees who relocated from Florida and those hired in North Texas.

Sandy Cross, Chief People Officer for PGA of America, said those numbers don't include jobs with the planned resort, golf course operations or incoming championships. The first championship game will be the KitchenAid Senior PGA Championship in 2023. Continue Reading.....

Award Winners Spotlight

2018

Bill Strausbaugh Award Matt Nice, PGA

Being nominated for the Bill Strausbaugh Award was humbling and also an opportunity to reflect on why. I have been blessed with some great mentors in my life. They set examples of being involved, giving back, and creating relationships. These individuals gave back to their facilities, juniors, section board/committees, and their community. Simply put, they made a difference.

I didn't necessarily know it at the time, but all of those factors have had a significant influence in my as an individual and certainly on my career. The Ridge and Sioux Center Community have given me plenty of opportunities to be involved. Some of those opportunities have fit my skillset well and are comfortable such as Chamber President, charity committees, and PGA Jr. League growth. Some have been outside my comfort zone such as guest conductor at the symphony and mentor at our local school for Jr. High kids. I've made it a point that if someone else believes I can add value to their organization or project, then I need to give back and represent The Ridge and PGA in our community.

Those examples I received motivated me to give back when opportunities arose. What I didn't anticipate is the fulfillment and enjoyment they all created. Whether it's PGA, facility, or community I highly encourage anyone to become involved. It's beneficial personally, professionally, and from an employer standpoint, has been for The Ridge as well. Get after it!

What Makes Someone a Fan?

By Ken Belson

It's more than just ticket sales.

Rich Luker, a social psychologist, studies fandom and why, for example, someone might get a tattoo of their favorite team.

This article is part of a new series on Visionaries. The New York Times selected people from all over the world who are pushing the boundaries of their fields, from science and technology to culture and sports.

The sports world is filled with people whose job is to sell tickets, advertisements, sponsorships, luxury boxes and all manner of game-day experiences. The more, the better. Any fan will do.

Rich Luker has tried to get those managers, supervisors and executives to look for something more profound, something he calls "lifetime value."

To Dr. Luker, the most concrete iteration of that concept is the idea that passionate fans would get a tattoo of their favorite team's logo to show that it is part of their core identity.

This is just one of the discoveries he has made over the past 25 years as the founder of Luker On Trends, a sports polling company that works with many professional sports leagues and teams. Market researchers increasingly rely on online surveys and other digital tools to track fan behavior. Dr. Luker is less concerned with outcomes — that a fan spent $25 on a ticket — and more focused on the stories that fans tell about why they follow a team.

Those fans, he said, are the ones that team executives ought to target in the increasingly complicated battle to get consumers to spend their time and money at a ballpark or arena.

Distinguished Service Award

Barbara Nicklaus Named Recipient of the 2019 PGA Distinguished Service Award

One of golf's most respected ambassadors to be honored Nov. 5, at the PGA of America's 103rd Annual Meeting in West Palm Beach, Florida ...

Barbara Nicklaus, one of the game's most successful ambassadors and admired advocates for the healthcare of future generations in addition to being the wife of the greatest champion in golf history, has been named recipient of the 2019 PGA Distinguished Service Award.

Nicklaus, 79, will be honored Tuesday, Nov. 5, at the PGA of America's 103rd Annual Meeting in West Palm Beach, Florida. Since 1988, the PGA Distinguished Service Award honors outstanding individuals who display leadership and humanitarian qualities, including integrity, sportsmanship and enthusiasm for the game of golf.
